I am not often at a loss for words but today is one of those times. My family and I would like to pass on our condolences to my sister Yvonne & her family, Mike and his family and all those who were regulars in Yvette's young life. Unsaid goodbyes are painful and her "too" young life a story we will never know the end of. I know the arms of our family were outstretched to bring you home on the last part of your journey. May each tear of sorrow turn into a smile of a memory of you. God speed Yvette!

You still are the very best part of us...everyday I'm either thinking of something you've done or said. As well as remembering how we were together...Yvette. I still cannot believe it. Excited that you're home with John, exploring and knowing one another... being with Laci. Mom and Dad ... Dortha ..Debbie. And even Ian once more. I will forever miss you. Touching you. I will look out for Michael. And always help where I can. I love you baby sister. You're forever my hero.

Michael, Yvonne, Scott, Uncle Donnie and Aunt Shirley I truly am sorry for the loss of our beautiful Yvette. Words can not express the loss you must be feeling.

Until I get to see you in person words will have to do.
Love you all.

Jeannie. I've read your post many times. My heart, it aches so deeply for you. Being a Mom is our greatest gift on earth. But frankly. When you lost your son. Well it's the hardest pain that you have to endure. My thoughts and prayers are with you. I pray deeply that you and Kim, find strength within each other. Thank you for sharing your warmth ... your sweet thoughts.

I wish you very sincere thoughts...prayers and knowing God will help you through this. ♥️ Yvonne

We are sending condolences to Mike and twin sister Yvonne.

May God comfort you with His love and strength to carry on.

Memories are the glue that hold our hearts together and there are so many that run through my thoughts since I heard of the sad news of my baby sister passing. Yvette had a heart of gold and her compassionate nature touched so many lives. Yvette was a born caregiver of all of God's creation and her light shone brightly wherever she went. Yvette, I want you to know you are always in my prayers. I miss you and I love you.

It's Sunday. I'm finding tough today. Forever I'm comforted by the fact that you're home. But I'm missing you. And as always. Even though we spent some much time together...I'm just very sad.

And it's selfish I know. For I wanted more. So very much more. But your pain and suffering is none gone. And you're where you most wanted to be. When oxygen was your greatest resource. When weakness carried you through...

We're all missing you. Especially Michael. For we've been looking through pictures. And what a beauty you were. It's truly amazing how I see you so differently than myself. Yet the same in oh so many ways.

It wasn't until those last days. I finally realized..you are and will always be. MY baby sister.

You used to tease often over those 7 minutes. That parted us.

Only ever that time.

Together we were thick and thin.

Never ever disagreed or ever never felt anything but deep.

So deep a forever love. How am I suppose to walk without you. Your physical being. I know. I know. God will take my hand and guide me.

Think of this. You've left me with another best friend. We will be there for each other as the tears flow. Gosh. Sissy I just miss you bad. So bad. I love you. Beyond

I am so very sorry Mike! And to the Family! Yvette was such a special person; forever encouraging and smiling despite her own health challenges. Enjoyed our visits and impromptu chats.

There is much relief knowing her pain has come to an end. Missing her is a big one I know. As Yvonne said believing she is gone is a continual daily telling to ourselves it is so. Pete has been gone 3 months and everyday my thought is "I can't believe it. It can't be."

So give yourselves lots of time.

Thinking and praying for peace and comfort.
